

The Blogs of the Edward Ringwald Websites are Discontinued

Since 2010 and before the era of Facebook I had blogs both on the EdwardRingwald.com and Interstate275Florida.com websites, which were hosted by Blogger. Over the years I wrote timely topics on my blog posts, with the most popular making them over to my website as a topic such as helicopter parenting and calorie counts in restaurants to name a few.

I have decided to simplify the operation of my online presence out there on the world wide web, and a part of that process was the decision to discontinue the two blogs I have had operating for years, the Edward Ringwald Blog and the Interstate 275 Florida Blog. The decision to discontinue these blogs was no easy task; these blogs have not been updated for a few years and I just needed to make life more simple by removing stuff that I do not need.

But the websites of the Edward Ringwald Websites Network will still be in operation! You will find good content still at EdwardRingwald.com, the website for all things Interstate 275 in the Tampa Bay region at Interstate275Florida.com as well as the website of the drawbridges of the Pinellas beaches at DrawBridgeAhead.com. Don't forget my web portal for the websites of the Edward Ringwald Websites network at EdwardRingwaldWebsites.com, that will remain in operation as well!

You probably are asking yourself, "what are you going to replace the blogs with"? That's a good question! As I have a presence on Facebook, I may consider a Facebook page or even a Facebook group but that will be later down the road. I may also consider starting a new blog, but that will be later down the road as well.

But the websites of the Edward Ringwald Websites Network – EdwardRingwald.com, Interstate275Florida.com, DrawBridgeAhead.com and the Edward Ringwald websites portal, EdwardRingwaldWebsites.com – are here to stay!